

The UP

Unstable coin is a memecoin on the Solana blockchain launched through the infamous PumpFun.

Nobody knows who made the coin. There are only theories, speculation and a guy named Academi probably drinking cocktails in Bali as we speak.

The idea however was clear to us, the community: "If the dollar is dying, lets make it a funeral music". We are talking about the same dollar that has existed for 113 years and lost its in value in 102 of them.

USDUC doesn't try to fix that system, it just mirrors it.

While the dollar has inflation, we have volatility.

You don't buy USDUC because you want stability, you buy it because you have seen what stability does.

That's pretty much it. A tribute to everything speculative, unstable and unserious - yet deeply honest.

Holds no promises. Solves no problems.

Yet somehow it feels real in a world in which everything seems fake.

There's no treasury.

There's no team (allegedly).

There's no roadmap.

But there is a coin. And for now, that's enough.
